PARTS OF AN ESSAY

- Introduction
- Body
- Conclusion

Introduction

- An essay begins with a introduction
- Prepares the reader for the essay
- Introduces the main idea and purpose of the essay
- Should be attention grabbing

  For example it start with a question, quotation, direct announcement, definition, etc.

Body

- Develops the main idea of the essay
- Explains, illustrates or provides evidence to support the main idea of the essay
- A single paragraph discusses only one aspect of the main idea. Another should be discussed in a new paragraph.
- Clarity and cohesiveness should be maintained between the paragraphs of the body text.

Conclusion

- An essay ends with a conclusion.
- Brings the essay to a logical end
- Provide closure for the reader by reviewing main points
- Remind readers of the primary focus of the essay by restating the main idea in different words
- An effective conclusion would be a memorable one for example, a call for action, a memorable message, etc.
